...ETWEEN MESSRS. ... CHINESE COOLEES ... PLE.

...oolees who have been ... Co. from Hongkong ... of the very worst cha... ... sea-board is made up of ... been for a long time ... o common kind to the inhabitants of Mazagon; one of the most populous parts of the Island of Bombay. These Chinese have (not content with fighting among themselves) created a feeling of uneasiness to the whole neighbourhood; and after exhausting themselves with thrashing one another, have tried the same game on with the Police. In one of these encounters—or, to speak more correctly—aggressions there, these miserable Foquies gained a temporary advantage: but as soon as the Commissioner of Police and a few of his European aides threatened them with all the terrors of the law, and a discharge of revolvers, they became as tame as doves. Taking advantage, however, of recent circumstances; and seeing that people's houses were blown down, themselves blown up, and without any very particular notice being taken of such disasters, Mr. Foqui has taken heart, and, on Friday afternoon, when work was over, he imagined he could have a little amusement in pelting the Hindoo labourers on the same works as he was himself employed to their homes. By all accounts, the Hindoos held these Chinese in small regard; and this was made evident by the manner in which they "went into" the Chinamen, and thrashed them, as they deserved to be, most thoroughly.

The Chinamen commenced the attack. A single Chinaman threw a stone: it was, very properly, returned; first a melee was attempted; but Mr. Leeke, the Magistrate, who happened to be taking a constitutional airing near the spot, immediately interfered and prevented the hostile parties from coming into collision. Mr. Foqui, who thought he would gain an advantage by the move, outflanked the Police, who had by that time assembled in considerable numbers, and got into the rear. They were worse off then than before. The Hindoos had then gathered from all points, smashed up all the Foquies, and tied thirty of them together—by their tails,—and left them to struggle together, and the result was, that one Chinaman died in the Hospital instead of sixty as was expected. These Chinese are a standing defiance to the Government itself. They are nearly all outlaws from their own country; and they should not only be controlled by the police and sent back to their own country, but every man who breaks the peace should be punished to the utmost limit the law permits. Had it not been for the interposition of Mr Leeke, who happened to be on the spot, a far more serious result would have happened. As it was seven Chinamen were taken to Hospital, one of whom is since dead, and another is in a very precarious state. The Chinamen, being the aggressors, have nothing to complain of, and had they suffered more severely, it would only have served them right.

An inquest was held on Saturday on the body of a Chinaman who died in the Hospital on the same night from injuries on the head. An Inquest has since been held on view of the body; which has returned the most absurd verdict, that has ever been returned even from a Bombay Jury:—

Verdict,—"Murder against some person or persons unknown. The Jury recommend that search be made by the Police for some of the more prominent agents in the affrays which they have heard of in evidence, and that these persons be taken before the Police to be dealt with according to Law."

In the first place, the death of the man could never be imagined to be a murder. In the next place, even if a man had once been in a row, why should he be suspected of complicity in the present row? This is the first reverse that the Chinamen of W. Nicol & Co. have received. Our native townsmen have now measured them, and we shall be glad to hear that they again and again thrash them well whenever they deserve it. The Chinese have recently been insulting the native women passing on the public roads. Both Hindoos and Mussulmans object to this; and if they make reprisals, and tie up every Foqui on the Island by his tail to anything to which it can be attached until his eyes start out of his head we shall be glad to hear that this has been done. Mr. Justice Lynch is the proper authority to dispose of these savages.

THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

We have been most anxious, even at the expense of a very heavy outlay, to supply our subscribers with the very latest intelligence received by Special Telegrams from England of which the bulletin in the Observer of the 21st was a specimen. How our efforts are thwarted and interfered with, the following letter will show. We can only hope that the uniform one-anna rate for news messages may be sanctioned. That would be very different to the ruinous rate of 14d. a word which we are now charged for a message from Bombay, when despatched on Sundays or Holidays, or after 6 p. m. Of course if Government gave complete messages regularly to the Press, we should be only too glad to retire in their favour. At present we never can calculate on a Government message, or whether it will embrace the latest intelligence.

Manager of the Times of India ... great surprise and annoyance that a copy should have gone to the Ceylon Times. No such message was sent from the Times of India to the Ceylon Times.

It is, therefore, evident that a message intended exclusively for me, was, either by error or through design on the part of some one in the Telegraph Department communicated to the Editor of another Paper. I thus lost all the benefit of the exclusive use of intelligence for which I paid,—proportion of Agency charges Rs 30 and cost of transmission Rs. 45 5—say in all £7 10 0. This sum I hope to recover from the Telegraph Department.

I trust that besides making inquiries in your own Circle you will send a copy of this my complaint to the Director General by to-day's Mail for Bombay.

Mr. Wickham's ideas of his duty to the Ceylon Government and of the rights of private property seem to be peculiar, considering that he is a servant of the Telegraph Department. He considers himself (so he has said in answer to remonstrance,) quite justified in sending to the Government here the Special Telegrams of latest news which the Times of India receives at a heavy cost via Suez. The moment they are published in Bombay he believes he has a right to Telegraph them to the Government here. If he persists in that practice, of course I and others will cease to receive such intelligence in private messages, and so Mr. Wickham's unscrupulousness will deperive the Department of a considerable revenue. And the worst of it is, that it seems uncertain whether a message to Government would be regularly sent by Mr. Wickham, even if I and others, trusting to him, gave up our private arrangements.

On the occasion referred to, Mr. Wickham sent no message at all to Government—neither of the intelligence by the regular Mail which he had a right to use, nor of the latest intelligence in Special Telegrams, with which in honour, and out of regard for the interests of his Department, I contend he never had any right to meddle.

I feel justified in suggesting as just possible, that Mr. Wickham out of regard to the public of Ceylon thought it right to order that a copy of my message should go to another Ceylon Paper, and in asking that the Director General should have the matter cleared up; finally I claim £7 10 as a compensation for the loss of the exclusive message.—I am, Sir, Your obedient servant,

A. M. FERGUSON.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

THE DESTRUCTIVE EXPLOSION AT MAZAGON.—The enquiry touching the death of a Hindoo named Essoo Babajee, who died from the injuries received at the late disastrous explosion, was resumed on Saturday last at the Jamsetjee Hospital, when the following additional evidence was recorded :—

Harold Smith deposed :—I am an Assistant Engineer employed on the Elphinstone Land and Press Company's Works. It is part of my business and duty to look after the blasting now going on at Belvidere Hill. I was there on Wednesday afternoon when deceased was struck with blasted matter. I gave orders for the blast of that night to be supplied with a smaller quantity of powder than usual, thinking from the neighbourhood of an inhabited house that might be dangerous to put in the usual quantity. I am not of opinion that there was any thing in the situation or the nature of the ground to require peculiar caution in blasting on this occasion. Judging from the result I now think we used too much powder on this occasion. The workmen were ordered off to a distance and a spot where it was thought safe for them to be before the blast took place. My experience in superintending blasting operations of this kind, that is in mining operations, has not been considerable, but I have seen much quarry blasting and I am of opinion as the result of my knowledge and experience that the result of the blast of Wednesday night last were not such as could have been anticipated until the ground is more explored than there has yet been time to do. I cannot account for these unusual results. The ground will most likely be explored within a week from this time. It was I who gave the signal to the mining overseer, Butler, before the blast last Wednesday afternoon. The deceased in my judgment was not killed in consequence of the unusual results of the blast. He might have been killed by an ordinary blast followed by no unusual results, and though at a greater distance than where he was on this occasion. I measured the length of the drive on Wednesday morning, and the distance from the chambers where the powder was to be placed to the face of the hill was twenty-seven feet within a few inches.

The enquiry will be resumed on Friday next, the 12th instant, in the Jamsetjee Hospital at 4 P.M.

MURDEROUS AFFRAY.—Another inquest was held on Saturday last at the Jamsetjee Hospital, to inquire into the circumstances connected with the death of a Chinaman named Haffoo. The facts of the affray will appear from the following depositions recorded at the inquest :—

William Shipp deposed.—I am employed on the Elphinstone Land and Press Company's Works and live at Mazagon. I was a witness to an affray at Belvidere hill yesterday afternoon between Chinamen and natives of India. I saw several men more or less injured, but not the deceased so as I could recognize him. I do not know how deceased came by his death. Later in the day I went to the Bunder and saw that many Chinamen's houses had been destroyed, and saw several wounded Chinamen, but I cannot recognize deceased as one of them.

James Henry Lyon.—I am an overseer of works under Mr. Wells, Contractor, at the Elphinstone Bender. I was there yesterday afternoon and saw an affray between Chinamen and natives. I do not know the cause or origin of the quarrel. I saw a man lying on the side of a road at the Bunder. He seemed much hurt. He was crying out as if in great pain, but speaking words that I did not understand. I belive deceased, whose body I have now seen, was that man. I do not know how deceased came by his death. I am not able to recognize any of the Chinamen or natives engaged in the affray of which I was witness.

Doctor Herbert Giraud deposed.—I am a Surgeon Major in Her Majesty's Bombay army and one of the Surgeons of this Hospital. I saw the deceased at about ten o'clock last night. He had a severe contusion on the forehead. He was in a state of insensibility and appeared to be in a dying state. I learn that he died at 6 o'clock A. M. to-day. I have just made a post mortem examination of his body. I found a contused wound of the scalp on the right side of the forehead. On removing the scalp I found a large quantity of blood effused between it and the skull. On opening the skull I found an extensive fracture extending from the seat of the contusion across the arch of the skull towards the left ear. In my opinion the deceased died from the effects of the injuries above described, and these injuries might have been produced either by a blow from a heavy weapon or by a fall from a height upon some hard substance. No one could survive such injuries more than a few hours after they had been inflicted.

The following verdict was recorded :—" Murder against some person or persons unknown."

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.—A third inquest was held on the same day at the Jamsetjee Hospital on view of the body of a convict named Balloo Raghoo, who was charged at the last Criminal Sessions for the murder of a woman, and was sentenced to transportation for life.

From the evidence of the Marshal of the County Jail of Bombay, it appears that deceased was a prisoner committed under the warrant of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Couch. He was a feeble old man from the time of his admission on the 26th ultimo, and had never been subjected to any labour whatever. He had been under medical treatment for about a week and had been duly attended to throughout. Deceased died early on Saturday morning.

It appears from the evidence of Dr. Hyslop, that the deceased was an old man of a feeble constitution, and he was under medical treatment from the 29th July until the morning of Saturday when he expired. Deceased died of dysentery.

Verdict.—" Died by visitation of God."

FORT POLICE OFFICE.—6th August.

(BEFORE N. W. OLIVER, ESQ.)

UP TO HIS PROFESSION.—A juvenile of the name of Khatah Meer Hussan was charged with robbery from the person. The prosecutor's statement was something after the following :—

That, expecting some friends to a social feed, he had returned home from his employ earlier than usual for the purpose of seeing that the forthcoming banquet was in a fair way of being produced at the hour named in the invites issued, he there found his better half in a high state of excitement not only in consequence of the onerous duties imposed upon the lady of the house on an occasion of the kind then in progress, but, she required some one to go to the market, and could neither go herself or spare any of the helps, each being entrusted with a separate department, therefore the absence of any or either would entail everlasting disgrace upon their cuisine: the prosecutor was gladly hailed upon his approach and being furnished with the requisite amount in specie, was requested without delay to step off to the market and procure the indispensibles, one item being "taturs." He departed upon his domestic errand, and a vendor of the "esculent tuber" being nearest, he stopped to arrange a purchase; whilst employed in the negotiation he heard behind him the chink of money he naturally clapped his hand to his pocket and found it was empty, he immediately raised a wail announcing his loss; the thief had however been duly "twigged," was pursued and captured ; the missing coin and a key belonging to the prosecutor being found upon him was of course sufficiently conclusive. He had managed the affair rather cleverly as regards the abstraction, for instead of picking the pocket by inserting his hand, he simplified the matter by cutting a hole in the bottom of the pocket, the contents falling at once into his hand. Having been recognised by the office officials as a clever young "prig" who had at several times been externally warmed as a reward for his "Barringtonian" propensities he was sentenced to three months, hard labour in the County Jail ; immediately upon hearing the sentence he assumed the "penitential water cart," and declared he had never been in trouble before ; it did not take however, and he was hauled off in the company of his old friends the polis.

MAZAGON POLICE OFFICE.—6th August.

(BEFORE F. L. BROWN, ESQ.

A DASTARDLY ASSAULT.—A most dastardly assault was committed on the night of the 5th July last in one of those dens of social evils now springing up so numerously in Girgaum Back Road, and which formed the subject of a criminal investigation at the Mazagon Police Office on Thursday last. The delay of placing the prisoners at the bar arose from some of the injured parties having been under surgical treatment.

The prisoners are foreigners, apparently Italians, five and in number, named Lean Krieger, Moritz, Yankoo Grienberg, Yacoob Yallick and Moses Goldenstein.

Mr. Barton conducted the prosecution.

Mr. Macfarlane the defence.

William Nenhals stated :—I am a European Jew and have no particular business. I live at Mr Brown's, near Khetwaddy. I recollect the night of the 6th July. On that night, at 7 o'clock, I had gone to take a walk in Girgaum. I know the defendants. I don't know what they are. On that night, between 7 and 8 o'clock, I was returning home smoking, when I met the defendants coming towards me near Mr. Nusserwanjee Patloo's house. I asked the second defendant where he came from. Defendant No. 3 began to abuse me, saying that he would cut me in pieces. They had all bludgeons and sticks in their hands. They all fell upon me. It was dark, and I can't say who struck me first. I saw that all defendants were present at this assault. They struck me on the whole of my body and on my head with these sticks. I had a cut over the eye. I went next day to Dr. Fogarty. He examined me, and he is here to-day to describe the injuries I received. The road was quite blocked up. I called out "sepoy!" I seized the defendant No. 5 by his hair. No sepoy came to my assistance. I saw defendants with my own eyes, and I positively swear that the five defendants are the men who assaulted me. I had known them well by sight before. I had not given those men any provocation for the assault that night. While I was holding defendant No. 5 by the hair, the other defendants struck me more. I held defendant No. 5. I do not know that he had a stick. I bled much. The only reason for this assault is that I was a witness against defendant No. 1 on one occasion. I swear that defendants were all present at the assault and that they all assaulted me.

Cross-examined by Mr. Macfarlane.—I had the care of the house of another person. I was not drunk. I do not drink. I did not drink any thing that day. I was not fined. It was dark when I met the defendants. It was not very dark. Previous to these defendants coming up I was not in a row with any one. Constable Wakefield came there. He took me into custody. I complained to Mr. Wakefield of the assault against all five defendants. Defendant No. 1 struck me. He struck me with a stick on my body. I know that defendant No 1 struck me. Defendants had sticks.

Dr. W. K. Fogarty said :—I recognize the last witness. On the morning of the 7th July last the prosecutor came to my house at Mazagon at about 8 o'clock. He could scarcely walk. He was helped into my consulting room with his head bound up. I attended to his ailments. On taking away the bloody handkerchief from the head, I found an incised wound on the line of the left eyebrow nearly an inch in length. It had been bleeding and the true skin was cut, My first impression was that it had been cut with a knife, the cut was so clean. With great difficulty I got him to take off his coat and shirt. On the left side of the body, I found right wales from three to four inches long. On the right side six of the same description. On the left shoulder there were two wales. The incised wound was on the right side : all the wales caused abraised wounds. His hands were much bruised. Those injuries were recent and must have been inflicted a few hours before I saw him, certainly about twenty-four hours, and they may have been caused by sticks. I had been sent for by a party who was said to have been well beaten. I declined to go, and desired the man to be sent to me next morning.

In consequence of the lateness of the hour the further investigation of the case was obliged to be adjourned, and will be resumed to-morrow at 2 P. M.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A MAJOR RETURNS THANKS.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—Allow me through the medium of your columns to present my compliments to Sir Charles Wood, as, by favour of his last Despatch I am made a Major, (i. e. Brevet) an honour which confers on me no substantial benefit, but, on the contrary, proves a substantial injury, sin e, whilst I receive no additional pay with the nominal, I am expected to keep up the additional dignity of the real rank. I am therefore desirous of assuring Sir Charles Wood that, when he visits India, if he will favour me with a meeting in any narrow lane, on a moonless night, he shall not fail to receive for the favour conferred the full benefit of the cordial hug of 3rd August. URSA MAJOR.

A JOB.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—As clean a little job has just been done at Army Head Quarters, I don't know whether at Simla or at Poona, as ever was perpetrated in the Crimea without being fully exposed by the press. Evidently we have Dowbs to provide for out of the Indian revenue, for in a recent General Order, unostentatiously introduced amongst a number of others, may be read the following :—

" With the sanction of Government, Paymaster John Fitzgerald of 109th Regiment is granted (on account of service prior to the date of his present appointment) a pension of £ 45-12-6 per annum, payable until further orders in India."

It is to be presumed that on the removal of the 109th Foot from India Paymaster Fitzgerald's pension, for services prior to his present appointment, will continue to be debited against the Indian accounts and will be payable in England or the Colonies.

Now, as it is well known to the service that Mr. Fitzgerald was promoted to his present position in the same way as all other officers are who rise for long and meritorious service, why, may I ask, is he the only individual to whom a pension for services in the rank from which he was promoted is accorded ? There are scores of officers at present in the service who have served their full time for pension in the lower ranks; might I ask—and I do not think under the precedent now afforded me that my question is at all unreasonable—are all these officers to obtain their pensions in addition to their present emoluments?

If they are to be benefitted in a similar manner, well and good, for my great grand-father's uncle having served more than the requisite time to entitle him to the pension of an assistant clerk before he was promoted to full clerk I think I have, as his heir, every right to claim the pension he would have been entitled to in his subordinate capacity.

If, on the other hand, this concession is made solely to Paymaster Fitzgerald, all that can be said about it is, that it is a muddy job.

ENSIGN JOB HATER.

THE HIGH COURT.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—The arrears of business on the Original Jurisdiction side of our High Court have now reached a pitch entitling the public and the legal profession to demand that some stringent reform should be applied somewhere. Whether through the fault of the Bench or of the Bar, or of the weighty and necessarily lengthy character of the causes, certain it is that the list shows the Court to be some five hundred cases behindhand. The inconvenience and the public injustice of such a state of things are simply intolerable : and it is obvious, looking at the rate at which cases have been lately got through, (something like eleven or twelve in a month), that, without the application of some remedy, the administration of justice will simply come to a dead lock.

There are some who cast the blame of this muddle upon our exceedingly inefficient system of pleading, which allows a case to go for trial upon no fixed issues, thereby necessitating a far greater amount of evidence than is required under the admirable rules of pleading in use in our Common Law Courts in England. There are some who blame certain maxims said to have been laid down by our absent Chief Justice, as to cross-examination, tending to increase to infinite length that useful testing of a witness's veracity. Others are known, and it may be with some show of reason, to blame the interminable long windedness of some distinguished members of the Bar, who in their great zeal for their clients, like Tennyson's Brook, " go on for ever."

But the most reasonable complaint is that the High Court is not provided with a sufficient staff of Judges The Civilian gentlemen on the Appellate Side cannot be trusted to walk alone through the mazes of the Code: and the Barrister Judge who is told off to do duty at Mazagon, leaves but three Brethren to dispose of the daily increasing business on the Original Side ; which like a gathering avalanche threatens to overwhelm them beneath its weight. The Judges are all working at High Pressure point, and the result simply is they are five hundred cases in arrear.

The sooner, then, our paternal Government turns its eyes on this blocked up legal thoroughfare the better. Certainly one if not two new Judges should be created without delay, we might then hope to see the disgraceful stigma attaching to the present state of affairs wiped out by a more speedy and satisfactory administration of justice being introduced.

6th August. A LAWYER.

THE PREVENTIVE SERVICE.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

SIR,—I entirely concur in the views of your correspondent " Observer" whose letter appeared in your issue of yesterday, I would, therefore, beg leave to go a step further in defence of the rights of injured Justice.

Many of the Preventive Officers, as your correspondent justly states, have been thrown out of employ, merely for the purpose of making room for new comers. I defiantly call upon the Head of the Preventive Service to deny this if he dare! And in truth of the assertion I shall adduce but one instance out of many. Mr. Appollenarius Pereira, who for almost two years conducted the duties of a Preventive Officer, has been thrown out on the ground of his being too young. For the last two years he was considered of sufficient-age and capable of conducting his duties, and now, forsooth, he is grown young. Really we live in an age in which we are called upon to swallow bitter and nauseous pills and to believe, contrary to all the principles of Physics, that as man advances in life he grows young ! Wonderful indeed is the discovery, but more wonderful still I believe should be the head from which it had the honour to emanate !

Lest my correspondence should contain personalities, I shall omit all mention of names, but I cannot help remarking that two of the lately employed Preventive Officers have been promoted to Rupees 100 each, and this in the very teeth of other senior Officers perfectly conversant with their duties, and whose legitimate claims, only for the object of favouring some new comers, have been set aside. Is this just ? Is this honourable ? If not being of sufficient age was considered sufficient to dismiss Mr. Pereira from the service—the beardless chins, Yankee English, and deep ignorance of these two promoted ought to have been insurmountable obstacles in the way of their advancement.

Your correspondent " Observer" failed noticing the injustice meted out to poor Gatekeepers. These, like their brethren of the other departments, looked with hope for some remuneration at the hands of Government, and they have been sadly, nay miserably, disappointed. Had they been left alone, the step would have been considered creditable to Government and just to themselves. But they have been deprived of what they had hitherto received, and thus an increase on the Irish system has been granted to them. O Tempora !

I cannot help bringing to public notice the case of Mr. Gungadhur, of the Import Department, who for the considerable period of 22 years has served the Government and who has been dealt with likewise !

It is really a pity (not to use any harsher phrase) to observe such acts of injustice done at a time when the reins of Government are under the skilful management of His Excellency Sir Bartle Frere. An act of this nature has hitherto been unprecedented in the chronicles of the Bombay Gubernatorial system.

If by such flagrant violation of every principle of right and equity Government are under the impression that they will, or have already, secured the services of young, hardworking, and efficient men, they are welcome to cherish the hope as fondly as they possibly can, but I am afraid that if matters be not " righted" and justice vindicated, the day will not be far distant, when, to their eternal shame, they will reap the bitter fruits of their partiality and imprudence.

I am not one concerned in the affair, but a natural sympathy urged me to devote a few leisure moments for the benefit of my injured fellow-beings.

Trusting that you will give this a corner,—I remain Sir, your very faithful servant,

JOSEPH HENRY SIQUEIRA.

BENGAL.

WE are glad to learn that the Ship Lady Blaney which was abandoned as a wreck on the Goodwin Sands, off Amherst, and purchased by Mr. Dawson for 12,000 Rupees, has been floated and all her cargo of timber has been saved, through the exertions of those who were employed to recover her.—Phœnix, July 30.

THE steamer Clan Alpine, has been chartered by the Agent of the Messageries Imperiales to carry the mails of the 3rd August to Galle instead of the Alphee, as the latter vessel is undergoing repairs in Dock and cannot be ready in time.—Englishman.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.—JULY 27TH.

(BEFORE THE HONORABLE MR. JUSTICE MACPHERSON)

Mohindro Loll Mookerjee vs. Rookeenee Dabee.

IN this case Mr. Remfry had obtained a summons calling upon the defendant's attorney " to shew cause why the said defendant should not within four days from the service upon her attorney of the order to be made" upon his summons " make a full and sufficient affidavit stating whether she has or has had in her possession, custody or power or in the possession, custody or power of any other person or persons on her behalf, any and, if any, what documents, accounts, letters, receipts and writings of any sort or description relating to the matters, in question in this suit, and accounting for the same, and what she knows as to the custody they or any or either of them heretofore were or are now."

Mr. Gillanders this morning appeared to shew cause, and submitted that the plaintiff was not entitled to an order for list in the form he wanted to have it. The Procedure Act is silent on the subject of such applications, and this practice, having been established in the High Court by Sir Mordaunt Wells (more as an indulgence than any thing else) ought to be governed by the forms he used to allow, and which only required a party to furnish " a list verified by affidavit of all books, papers and documents in his possession or control relating to the matters in question in the suit." The present application was more in the nature of an " Interragatory" under the old Supreme Court equity practice than a simple one for a list, and as no affidavit was put in, charging the defendant with possession of any specific document, or ever having had any document, or that having documents in her possession she was about to destroy them, the plaintiff could only have a list in the usual terms.

Mr. Justice Macpherson said that the form of the present summons was by far the safer one to have lists in. Under it a party would be bound to account for any document that he had in his possession years ago, but which was then not in his possession or control, the other only required a list of documents in the possession or control of the party, and he might with impunity avoid giving any account of documents previously in his possession, but then beyond his control, though it might be only temporarily. This would entail great inconvenience upon the opposite party and eventually end in the failure of justice. The former form, besides, is used in courts of equity in England and adopted in Smith's Chancery Practice. This form was also used in the Master's office of the old Supreme Court, and his Lordship did not see why it should be departed from now. He would direct a list to be furnished in the terms of the summons.

Ordered accordingly.—Hurkaru, July 29.

CEYLON.

WE are greatly indebted to a Point Pedro friend for a short account of the arrival of the 'Jaffna' at that port. The letter has been kindly placed at our disposal, and we give an extract from it :

" You will doubtless be delighted to learn that the long expected Steamer 'Jaffna' connected with the Madras and Colombo Steam-Ship Company, arrived at Point Pedro port this morning [13th] from Newcastle, after a protracted voyage of 5 months. The Captain is one Peter Sheen, and there are on board of her 10 seamen, one Engineer and his wife. The vessel is a splendid one, and far surpasses our rolling tub the 'Pearl.'" Ceylon Patriot, July 15.

REVIEW.

(From the Athenæum.)

Recollections and Wanderings of Paul Bedford. Facts, not Fancies. (Routledge & Co.)

ATTILIUS and Mr. Paul Bedford are of the same opinion : " Satius est otiosum esse quam nihil agere ;" which may be rendered, " It is better to turn your leisure to account by doing a mere nothing, than to spend it in doing nothing." This book is in itself a mere nothing, but it adds a page or two, out of its hundred and a half, to the history of the drama ; and to those who take an interest therein it will be to the extent we have indicated, acceptable. Mr. Bedford, in his introduction, speaks of his volume as a relation of " a few incidents and adventures of my infantine, manhood, and matured career." The phraseology is equivocal, but the design of the writer is clear enough. When his infantine career began, he does not vouchsafe to inform us. Mr. Bedford is as tender about dates as Plutarch, Mr. Bowman, Betterton's son-in-law, Madame de Genlis and Lady Morgan. Any one who asked the old, finely-dressed Mr. Bowman what his age might be, only obtained for answer, " Sir. it is very well ! "—" Dates ! " exclaimed Lay Morgan, " What has a woman to do with dates ?"

Mr. Bedford sub-entitles his book, " Facts, not Fancies ;" but we are bound to say that the latter predominate. Had the title-page intimated that the volume was an exposition of the philosophy and religion of " the boy, Paul," as he likes to be called, it would, in a certain sense, have given a clearer idea of its contents to all inquirers. The few facts here told in the way of autobiogragpy show that a visit to Richardson's dramatic booth spoiled Paul Bedford for a Bath auctioneer, and sent him strolling, and enduring what strollers feel, till he obtained an engagement in the then well-organized theatre of his native city. He has missed a fair opportunity by not giving us some reflection of that olden time ; some seven or eight and forty years ago. At that period there was one player, at least, at Bath, who had been contemporary with Garrick, namely, old Miss Summers, who had acted during fifty consecutive seasons at Bath only : and in whom, as she tottered slowly to church, when past eighty years of age, no one could recognize the bright and bounding Columbine of sixty years before. We would fain have heard something of Baker, famous for his mistakes, and who, having once, as Norfolk ('Henry the Eighth'), to say " Ego et rex meus," pronounced the last word as a monosyllable, to the delight of all the jocund scholars in the house. Not that he was worse than Woulds, last of the old-fashioned Bath managers, who had, in his favourite part of Spatterdash, to exclaim, " Brutes per Jovem!" and taking all three words for Latin, uttered the first as a dissyllable ! Then, has Mr. Bedford no reminiscences of Dimond's deputy stage-manager, Charlton, whose virtue of good-nature degenerated by excess into the vice of weakness, but who could address an audience with a plausibility, an insinuation and a suggestiveness, worthy of Jack Palmer himself ? What a stage was that Bath stage of the first quarter of this century, when Mr. Bedford first figured on it ! All the stages now in London would not produce such a company as then used to challenge the admiration of Bath city. Fancy, in one season, having Kean, Young, Warde, Conway, Wallack, W. Farren, and others only next to them in repute (not to mention the " Philanthropist of Fashion" and all his diamonds), with Miss O'Neil and a sisterhood worthy of acting with such a principal ! Some of the pieces there played were relics (once popular) of the time of Betterton : 'Philaster, or Love lies a-bleeding,' with Miss. Jarman in Bellario ; 'The Conscious Lovers,' with Warde in the part which once distinguished Barton Booth,—Bevil, junr. There are still folk there who remember the comic solemnity with which Mr Bedford played and sang 'Don Guzman and the Ghost of himself ;' how gaily he acted Rovewell, in 'The Contrivances ;' and with what picturesque and melo-dramatic effect he stood before the audience as Black Frank, to the Meg Murdochson of Miss Jarman's mother. We are thankful for the solitary anecdote which Mr. Bedford tells us of this time, when, in playing Norfolk to Kean's Richard, he set Edmund, and all the audience in a roar, by the substitution of a word which was not in the original.

But he might have told us even better things, of how gigantic Conway and little Edmund had a mutual horror of acting together in the same scene ; or of how Mr. Bedford's own Pistol went hilariously off to the Falstaff of his subsequently " loved Frederick,"—Yates. His Pistol and his Glumdalca even then caused the Bath playgoers to predict to the vocalist a prosperous career as a low comedian ; and his Caliban was at that time as good in most points as Emery's ; while Inkle, though it fell short of that of the great original, John Bannister, was the best, at least, on the Western stage. Mr. Bedford enlightens us a little on his Dublin career, during which he wooed and won a very accomplished singer, Miss Greene, with whom, after he had accompanied Madame Catalani on a provincial concert-tour, he appeared at Drury Lane, just forty years ago, in 'Love in a Village,' in which he acted Hawthorn, and his wife Rosetta. His Giles, in 'The Maid of the Mill,' and Caspar, in 'Der Freischütz' (which he persistently misspells 'Der Frieschütz'), which was assigned to him on Horn passing over, against his will, to lodgings in Took's Court, gained for him a moderate success ; but he grew in favour, at the coming of Malibran, established himself at the Princess's, when he sang in opera with that lady of the ringlets, Madame Thillon, and grew the spoilt child of the public in a new line at the Adelphi, where he has now been playing for twenty years. Of the Malibran period, here is a reminiscence. The Drury Lane singers had been rehearsing the music of 'The Maid of Artois,' at Madame's rooms in Conduit Street, when the heat was tropical ;—

" However, having finished, the room was ventilated by throwing open doors and windows and then our charming hostess invited us to partake a draught of that exhilarating fluid called Champagne. She also said she would cool us after the manner of the South Americans, which operation was executed by pouring Eau de Cologne into the palm of her hand, and rubbing it over our heads. And we also enjoyed breezes produced by the action of a monstrous Chinese fan. The relief experienced was delightful. But one of our party came to grief, in the person of the then primo teno.e of the Drury establishment. When it came to his turn to enjoy the refresher, he kept bobbing his head up and down. At last our hostess got him steady, and rubbing his head vigorously, away went the luxuriant scratch leaving him under a bare poll to the great amusement of the assembled party. The disconcerted tenor made a rush to recover the fugitive jasey ; but Madame was beforehand, and, grabbing hold of the curly, flaxen decoration, she refused to give it up until he consented to the cooling and balmy process, so much enjoyed by the lookers on. That completed, she said, 'My dear Mr. T., I'm deceived : I did not think there was any-thing false about you.' "

An Adelphi " bit" will be found in what follows :—

" I allude to J. L. Toole, whose public celebrity is world renowned, but whose real worth and goodness can only be appreciated by those who have the pleasure of his private society and friendship. This miniature of goodness is ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy of our craft. For example, on one night last season he played at three theatres, first at the Surrey, secondly at the Adelphi, and thirdly at Sadler's Wells. A comic incident occurred in the transit from the Adelphi to Sadler's Wells. He—Toole—played the clock-maker boy in 'Janet Pride,' at the Adelphi ; having to finish at Sadler's Wells as Old Grinnidge in the 'Green Bushes.' Being pressed for time, he changed garments in the cab. When arrived at the theatre, cabby was astonished to see the old man turn out, and said, 'What have you done with the boy ? this old cove didn't get in at the Adelphi ; what have you done with the young 'un ? I ain't easy in my mind about that there lad.' We laughed, and told the Jarvey it was all right."

We may state generally of this book of recollections and wanderings, that the wanderings exceed the recollections, and much of what is said is uttered with an " I believe you, my boy" tone and air, such as made the author famous on the Adelphi stage. Still, there is, as we have said, a philosophic side to the book, mild as the Welsh " native ale, which," as Mr. Bedford profoundly remarks, " taketh not the reason prisoner, provided you do not imbibe the exhilarating fluid too vigorously." As of philosophy, so is there a vein of religion, peculiarly treated of course. Mr. Bedford illustrates the religious feeling of actors by describing a Sunday-evening party at Kean's house, at Richmond, at which Mrs. Glover said, " Now, Edmund, give us a treat by repeating to us the Litany and the Lord's Prayer" :—

" He consented ; and had the delivery of those sacred words been heard by our ecclesiastical brethren, it would have proved to them a lesson on elocution beyond all price. Be it understood this occured on a Sunday evening, therefore that event will demonstrate to the world, more particularly to the strait-laced portion of the creation, that we are not the thoughtless children they consider us to be."

It strikes us that the " therefore" is hardly logically placed in order to prove what the writer would demonstrate. Nor can we have so high an opinion of Mr. Bedford's philosophy as of his feeling when he tells us of his presence at the surgical examination of Kean's corpse, and assures us that " when I heard the anatomical saw applied to the skull of the departed, I felt a sensation of faintness. I withdrew to the door. I listened, but looked not." Paul was scarcely less touched by one incident of the funeral at Richmond : " Boats from London, bearing admirers decorated in deepest mourning, reminded the beholder of huge black beetles floating on the water." More strictly philosophical is our author when, sighing deeply, he alludes in a warning spirit to " luxuriating too extensively in his relish for the insinuating native fluid," which resulted in " the drowning of that gifted one," the Scotch wheelwright who designed the monument to " the great departed Walter." Of another great man, Mr. Huskisson, Mr. Bedford records approvingly that, at the opening of the Liverpool and Manchester railway, the Duke of Wellington and his old subordinate, Mr. Huskisson, were reconciled, " the estranged hands were shaken with cordiality, renewing the bond of friendship to be enjoyed by one only for a few minutes,"—after which Mr. Huskisson " in a moment was obliterated from creation." Mr. Bedford philosophized on the calamity, till " at length seven o'clock came, the hour of banquetting . . . and some forty heart-stricken creatures appeared and went through the ceremony of dining." Poor things!

Incledon died in Worcester county prison when the guest of the Governor, old John Lavender ; and Mr. Bedford is satisfied that " he had early imbibed the principles of religion, he having been brought up as a chorister boy !" Mr. Bedford is quite sure of cause and effect in this matter, and is almost as much so in another case when, turning from religion to politics, he states his belief that Lady Blessington, Court D'Orsay and the Misses Power " were the only persons in this country who were cognizant of the Prince's" (Louis Napoleon's) " affair at Strasbourg." We may add that Mr. Paul Bedford names the Prince and Count among his " associates." Lord Palmerston has not the honour of appearing in this list, but Mr. Bedford has no ill-will against him. He frankly speaks of his Lordship's house as " the residence of the gifted one." This species of charity is unbounded, embracing all ranks in various degrees. Miss Woolgar, " always admired, but now arived at maturity, adored." " My affection is also due to Mrs. Billington." With this brotherly love, the philosophic spirit is ever alive and made manifest in such maxims as, " from evil often riseth good," and " we sleeping mortals little dream of the disasters the morrow may bring with it !" You cannot controvert these truths.

As describer of his contemporaries, Mr. Bedford deals in strange phrases,—sometimes they are singularly inappropriate, at others, screamingly farcical. To call Edmund Kean, who was born in a London gutter, a " rustic Jimmy Green," or " a miniature of rustic artillery," is a sample of the former. We have a taste of the latter quality, when he speaks of the same actor as " the dreaded demonstrator of the most noted emanations of the Bard of Avon." Mr. Hazlitt is set down as " the John Oxenford of our day" ; but how a man of his own day could be another man of that other man's day, some readers will be possibly unable to see. In strong melo-dramatic phrases, the writer deals largely. Mr O'Connell, whose hand he once shook, is " the admired of the world." To Scott's monument in Edinburgh, he advances with a stage step and pause, and pronounces it to be the " first object of my adoration." Madame Catalani, who died, in Paris, of cholera, is spoken of as " our dear, matured, loved one," who " did not escape the fury of the contagion." Very rarely does the author stoop to say that he acts or plays ; he is always " illustrating," or " demonstrating". If he has meeting with managers or actors, he uses a phrase that either Mrs. Malaprop or Mrs. Ramsbotham might have envied, for he says, " the ensemble took place." The Adelphi is not to him the Adelphi, but " the loved spot of my affection," and the " regina pecunia" he sets aside, to speak of the decline of the " rex pecuniarum," who is not so well known. To have seen Ducrow in his act of horsemanship, " the Courier of St. Petersburg," is " a never-to-be-forgotten event ;" and certainly, Andrew knew more about that professional feat than he did of the air of " Jaffier's fair daughter," as he would call Jephtha's child.

In his 'Recollections and Wanderings' Mr. Beford treats of 'Facts, not Fancies,' if we may trust his title-page. We think, however, he sometimes confounds the two. It is not a fact that " the marvellous lump of genius" (Kean) " toppled from their thrones Siddons, Young, and all the notabilities of that period." Mrs. Siddons had retired before Kean appeared, and Young, an old London actor when Kean arrived, kept the stage nearly as long as Kean himself. It is not a matter of the slightest importance what Kean acted on his return from America, after the action brought against him by Alderman Cox, but it is a " fancy" of Mr. Bedford's when he says that " every unpleasant recollection of the civic tornado—as Richard said that night—' was in the deep bosom of the ocean buried,' " inasmuch as Kean played Shylock. Again, is it not a " fancy" on the part of Mr. Bedford that he " imbibed the first flash" (a difficult thing to imbibe) " of the wit and humour displayed by the children of Erin," in hearing a bystander say, in reference to a man dead drunk, that he would be glad to have half the drunkard's disease ? The joke is centuries old. Nearly as venerable as another, which Foote used to tell as an old story, showing that dead lawyers were never buried, but were decently laid out in a room, on entering which the following morning you discovered that the lawyer was not there, and a strong smell of brimstone in his place.

We must relax our hold on Mr. Bedford's button and as he passes from us under the shadow of the stage-door, we can but recommend those who would known the veteran more closely, to follow him through such pages as he has here, somewhat too hurriedly, thrown together.

WINNING AND LOSING.

(From " Quite Alone," in All the Year Round.)

AT three o'clock that afternoon the broken bankrupt, Francis Blunt, had won fifty thousand francs. " I'll be a gentleman again," he chuckled to himself. " I wonder where that rascal Constant is. He'd be glad to shave and dress me again if I paid him the money I owed him. I'll find out my daughter and make a lady of her. I've got fifty thousand francs. That's two thousand pounds, By G—I'll break the bank before I've done with them." He had been playing without any intermission, save his brief converse with Greyfaunt, since eleven o'clock. After four hours' gaming he felt faint. Stuffing his winnings, which, as his stakes had grown larger, had been gradually converted into notes, into his pocket, he went out to the restaurant attached to the establishment. He swallowed some soup and ate a cutlet, ordered a bottle of champagne, and drank the whole of it; then ordered a decanter of brandy, and drank the better part of that, too. The meat and drink warmed the cockles of his old heart, and made him feel braver in his rapacious intent. " I shall win a hundred thousand before eleven o'clock," he muttered. " A hundred, bah ! Two hundred thousand. My hand's in. My luck's hot. I wish it was the bones, though, instead of that child's play of roulette." Toadies suddenly started up around him. Dilapidated raffs, almost as greasy and as ragged as himself, but who that very morning had avoided his company as though it had been contagious, came and claimed acquaintance with him. They clapped him on the back, and congratulated him. He grinned, and bade them to rather congratulate the luck, since to that alone he was indebted for their society. But he was in a bounteous mood, and treated them plenteously. They would have borrowed money of him, but he had done enough in the way of pecuniary generosity. " As much brandy as you like," he said, but not a centime." He rose at about five, remarking that he would have another turn at the tables. He was that afternoon the lion of Frascati's, and a crowd followed him with eager eyes. He felt his head swimming and his legs trembling under him. He called for some soda-water, but there was none ; there was only some insipid eau de Seltz, of which he took a draught, with some brandy. Then, evading his admirers for a moment, he slipped aside into a side-room, where the innocent games of chess and draughts—for Frascati's liked to keep up appearances—were supposed to be played, and which was consequently always empty. He drew a card-table to the door, knowing that at least he should have fair warning if attempts were made to open it, and, sitting down, proceeded to pull off one of his boots. It was the fellow to the boot which had the hole in it disclosing the inked stocking. He flattened a thousand franc note down into the toe, and put on the boot again, and rose up with a leer. " If the worst come to the worst," he thought, " we have this to fall back upon." By seven o'clock he had won in all a hundred and fifty thousand francs, but he had made at least half a dozen dives into the restaurant, and drunk more brandy. More than once the croupier had to remind him that he had left a bank note unclaimed on the table. He let money drop and refused to pick it up. He flung about his money recklessly ; now on one side, now on the other. But he kept on winning, winning, winning. He was drunk. The largest stake allowed at Frascati's was twenty-five thousand francs—a thousand pounds. He put down this sum in twenty-five notes of a thousand on the red. Black turned up, and his twenty-five thousand francs were swept away. He gave a tipsy yell, and said that he didn't care, and put down twenty-five thousand more, on the same colour. Again black turned up, and he had lost fifty thousand francs. " He has lost his head," whispered the clean-looking old gentleman. " It is the beginning of the end," the military personage said. Half an hour afterwards, of all his winnings, Blunt had just one thousand francs left. The crowd were as absorbed in interest to see him lose, as they had been during the afternoon to see him win. The press around him was enormous. Some mounted on the benches at the back of the saloon to have a better view. He was still the lion of Frascati's, but a lion in the toils, a lion encompassed by the hunters, a lion at bay. To his drunken memory it suddenly occurred that all his winnings had been made by betting on the numbers. But a long period had elapsed since he had abandoned his faithful thirty-three. He cast his last thousand franc note to a croupier, and told him to put it on " thirty-three." " En plein ou á cheval—in full or on horseback ?" asked the croupier. " In full ; may as well be hung for a sheep as for a lamb," stuttered Blunt, now very far gone. The gallery were amazed at the desperation of the stake, for he admitted it was to be his last. One friendly voice was raised to warn him against his peril. " Put on five hundred ! Cry out five hundred a la masse !" urged the voice, which belonged to a poor broken-down captain of the Grand Armee. " Won't," mumbled Blunt. " Let it come up as it likes." " At least put a louis, in case of accident, on zero. Zero hans't been up for ninety rounds." " Haven't got a louis left." " Well here is one," said the poor broken-down captain. " You' re so drunk and so desperate, that something tells me that thirty-three or zero will turn up." Blunt took the proffered louis, and tried, as steadily as he could, to roll it on end towards the compartment marked zero, which is close to the outer circumference of the wheel, in the middle of the table. But his aim, accurate enough, when sober, failed him now. The coin stopped at the compartment marked " four," oscillated, and fell flat. " For zero ?" a croupier said inquiringly, He was close to the louis, and would have gently propelled it with his rake towards the designated spot; but Blunt, with a screech, forbade him. " Let it be there," he said, " the devil will take care of his own." " A thousand francs on thirty-three, and a single louis on zero," whispered the clean old gentleman ; " the fellow must be mad. Any way he must lose." The pillar revolved, the ball whizzed round and stopped. Then the banker called out : " Zero." The rakes gathered in Blunt's thousand france note, and the poor broken-down captain's louis. He did not care to ask his debtor when he would repay him. Justice Shallow had, perhaps, about as good a chance of being repaid the thousand pounds which Sir John Falstaff owed him. The poor broken-down captain was a philosopher. All he said was this : " The imbecile ! Why did he not insure on zero, as I told him ? At least thirty-five louis would have been saved out of the wreck, and some capital would have been left for future operations." Blunt was too old a hand to fall beneath the table in a fit, to tear his hair, to beat his breast. He staggered away to the buffet, and asked the waiter to let him have a glass of brandy on credit. The superintendent nodded assent, and they gave him the liquor. He had lost so very largely as to be entitled to that trifling pourboire. Frascati had some bowels of compassion. " Besides,' he said, as he drained the glass, " it's only for a little time. I shall pay presently. There's a fellow in the room owes me five louis. Has anybody seen him ? A handsome fellow with curly hair." He had reached that stage of intoxication not uncommon with habitual topers, when an additional glass of liquor rather sobers than stupifies. Blunt felt for a moment himself again. The lacqueys kept a keen eye upon him to turn him out (now that he was ruined) if he attempted to create a disturbance ; but he went very composedly to and fro and up and down, from the roulette to the trente-et-quarante, seeking for the fellow who owed him five louis. He found the fellow at last. Mr. Edgar Greyfaunt's face was flushed and his eyes were sparkling. A pile of notes and gold was before him. He was winning largely. " Hallo! old gentleman," he cried, as Blunt came up with pendent lip and bloodshot eyes, " Cleaned out, I suppose ?" " Ay !" " Ah ! you backed your luck a little too often. You'd better have been contented with a little. What a lot you were winning to be sure. Stop ! don't I owe you five louis ? Here they are. And oblige me by going to another table, and playing by yourself, for if you back my luck, it's sure to turn, and I shall lose." Blunt thrust the money in his pocket, and turned on his heel in dudgeon. The young man's voice and manner seemed to him to be inexpressibly insolent. He skulked to the roulette-table, and changed his five pieces of gold into twenty pieces of five francs each. He wished to protract his agony as long as possible. He played cautiously, timidly, nervously—eschewing the numbers altogether, waiting sometimes for a dozen rounds before there appeared what he deemed a favourable chance, shifting his paltry stakes, now to red, now to black, now to odd, now to even, now to over, now to under. At one time he had scraped together some sixty or seventy francs; but luck again departed from him, and as the clock struck ten he had lost the last of his five louis. He found out Edgar Greyfaunt again, who still winning, was absorbed in the game. Blunt jogged his elbow. " I am cleaned out again," he pleaded humbly, " When you were too, I lent you five louis, and those I have had back, and spent. Lend me ten louis now, for Heaven's sake. There is only another hour left to play. Let me have one more chance." " Go to the deuce !" cried Edgar Greyfaunt, pettishly, as he gathered in a handful of louis he had won. " Only five louis then," urged the miserable old man, " Make it five louis, for mercy's sake, and you shall have them back in five minutes. I didn't wait to be asked when I lent you the money." " The more fool you." Mr. Greyfaunt coolly responded. " Don't bother me ! You're making me play all at sixes and sevens. Stop ! here's a five-franc piece. It will get you a bed and some breakfast in the morning." The ancient spirit of Francis Blunt, Esquire—the remembrance that he had once been a gentleman—rose for a single moment, and chased away the miasma of misery, the fumes of brandy and tobacco, which hung about him as a mantle. By a mechanical movement, he clutched at the proffered dole ; but, lifting his shaking hand, he flung it at the head of Mr. Edgar Greyfaunt, accompanying the act by a storm of fierce invective addressed to that young gentleman. The beggared gamester was speedily seized round the body by two of the powdered footmen. It was intolerable that the decorous conduct of so important a game as trente-et-quarante should be interrupted by the frenzied violence of this tattered and disreputable person. The entrance of the saloons must be henceforward interdicted to him. Monsieur the Commissary of Police said as much. The commissary came forward, unbuttoned his waistcoat, and showed his tricoloured scarf beneath. To the powdered footman he threw the significant words " A la porte !" So it was to the door with him. Turn him out ! Send him packing ! There was some little scuffling and scraping along the floor, and there was some little snarling and sputtering, as he was half-dragged, half-pushed through the sumptuous saloons he was to behold never more. A few of the players turned, looked, shrugged their sholders, grinned, took snuff, and went on backing the red or the black. They got Blunt out without much difficulty, though he kicked a good deal, and tried to bite one of the lacqueys. They bundled him down stairs, and flung his hat after him, detaining his stick as a lethal weapon capable of working mischief. " And thank your stars, my brave," remarked the footman who gave him the final shove into the Rue de Richelieu, " that we do not send for the sergents de ville, and have you taken to the nearest post. I think you would be grateful, even for a bed at the guard-house." " Curse you !" cried the wretched old man, gathering up all his sobriety and all his strength. " Curse you and your thieving crew ! Take that !" And he hit out—he had been a bruiser in his youth —and caught the menial cleverly under the jaw. The Frenchman, to whom kicking and caning were tangible entitles, but who did not understand fisticuffs, set up a dismal yell ; but before he had recovered himself sufficiently to cry " A la garde, a la garde !" Blunt had staggered away, and was beyond pursuit. The miserable old fellow was haunted by a vague impression that he had some money about him somewhere ; but in what place he tried, desperately, vainly, to remember. He turned out his pockets, and pulling off his hat, searched the lining. But his efforts were fruitless. He began to cry and was a sorry sight to see.

OUR share market in the beginning of the last week, in consequence of the arrival of favourable news from England, opened with activity, and the rates in some shares rose fifteen per cent, but the petty-holders being very anxious to sell off their stock, the market again relaxed. Also the unexpected, and rather early advance in the discount rate of the Bank of Bombay, in some measure, affected the market.

In Government Securities there is some inquiry for the four per cent, while fives and five and a halfs are totally rejected.

Our quotations for the Press, and Mill, and some of the Shipping Companies shares are merely nominal.

EXTRACT FROM THE GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S ALMANAC.

THE GRAEFENBERG UTERINE CATHOLICON.

WOMAN from the peculiar physiological functions of her organs, and from the refined and delicate sensibility of her nervous system, is subject to diseases which destroy her own happiness and greatly impair her power of contributing to the happiness of others. Every mother and head of a family, and most women above the age of fifteen years, are painfully conscious of this fact, and all, in a greater or less degree, are interested in the search for a prompt and efficient remedy for the various forms which the diseases alluded to assume.

Until the organization of the Graefenberg Company, the medical profession sought in vain for a cure for these complaints, to which every woman is liable, and from which wealth, refinement and station afford no exemption.

The experience of many years, the severe tests of investigation by scientific medical men, the use of the medicine in the practice and in the families of physicians, and its general use in the families of clergymen and among the most cultivated and refined in the country, has resulted in stamping the elegant and well-known preparation of the Graefenberg Company as the only reliable remedy ever known for the universal and distressing diseases of women.

It is prepared by an educated physician of great experience, and it will always be found fully equal to representations concerning it. It is known as

THE GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S UTERINE CATHOLICON.

The Catholicon should be used in all cases of uterine or monthly trouble attended with any of the following symptoms:—

Deranged Monthly Periods,
Irregularities,
Weakness,
Faintness,
Deranged Appetite,
Sallow Complexion,
Pain in the Kidneys,
Chills,
Cold Hands and Feet,
Bloatings,
Feverishness,
Neuralgia,
Palpitation of the Heart,
Dizziness,
Nervousness,
Headache,
Restlessness,
Disturbed Sleep,
Spasms,
Flushes of Heat,
General Pain,
Crawling and Pain in the Spine and between the Shoulders,
Acid Stomach,
Nausea,
Indigestion,
Difficult Passing of Urine, with Heat or Smarting,

Burning or Irritation in the Uterine Organs,
Itching,
Nightmare,
Despair,
Hysterics,
Anxiety,
Leucorrhœa,
Red Face,
Nervous Twitching,
Starting,
Constipation,
Irritable Temper,
Sadness,
Depraved Appetite,
Flatulence,
Bloated and Irregular Bowels,
Unpleasant Dreams,
Pains in the Uterine Organs,
Numbness and Pains in the Limbs,
Loss of Memory,
Bewilderment,
Soreness in the Feet,
Pain in the Back,
Prolapsed Uterus,
Tumors.

Fifteen years of ample and varied experience has proved, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that this Catholicon will restore functional and general health, freshness of complexion, and constitutional vigor; and it will do this at all ages of female life, from the young girl languidly budding into womanhood, to when the "turn of life" leave the system enfeebled and unable to meet the demands of the change upon the constitution. In the troublesome symptoms attending pregnancy, the benefit of the Catholicon is most remarkable.

TESTIMONY.

I now sit down to write the effects of the Graefenberg Uterine Catholicon in my own case. Language cannot portray half its value. To appreciate it, a person should suffer as I have done; try everything else and fail to get any relief; feel life a burden; see a helpless family of young children growing up, with the mother sick and powerless to care for them; and then to feel the healthful influence of the Graefenberg Catholicon restoring of frame racked with pain and agony, to youthful vigor and health. Until the woman has experienced this she does not know how much the Graefenberg Catholicon has blessed the world. It cured me of dreadful and long-continued sufferings; I have spoken and written about it—urged others to take it—and I never knew it to fail.
MRS. C. A. BARTLETT, Green Bush, Wis.

☞ The above case was one of the very worst which ever came to my knowledge. The Graefenberg Catholicon effected a cure. This wonderful medicine is a certain, absolute, unfailing remedy in all such cases, and in all cases for which it is recommended.
J. F. BRIDGE, M. D., N. Y.

We feel it a duty we owe to the public to state that the Graefenberg Uterine Catholicon is a medicine invaluable for complaints classed under the head of Female Diseases. We have used it, and have been greatly benefitted thereby—so much so that, were the price double, we would have it. To the thousands of our sex who are suffering from weakness, we would recommend the Catholicon as a sure cure. It gives strength to the system and enables each of the organs of the body to perform their appropriate functions.
MRS. W. CARTER,
MRS. E. E. WEEKS.
MISS C. SWORMSTEIT.
Medina, Ohio, March , 1861.

☞ The above-named ladies we are personally acquainted with, and know that for several years, while we lived in Medina, they were great sufferers. Miss S. has been so badly afflicted that it was with difficulty she was able to stand upon her feet. A few bottles of Catholicon entirely cured her of her complaints. My wife received great benefit from this medicine. We recommend it to the ladies of this country as a safe and efficient remedy for the many complaints they are subject to.
JOHN WEEKS, Editor Canfield (O) Herald.

We have sold the Graefenberg Family Medicines for a number of years and take pleasure in saying that they have always proved all that you claim for them the most reliable remedies of the day.
We dislike to particularize where all of them appear to be indispensable, but cannot refrain from referring to the Graefenberg Uterine Catholicon, which has never failed in its mission, and has produced results, under our immediate observation, both wonderful and satisfactory.
It is especially useful in diseases incident to pregnancy, and we have no hesitation in saying that its use by persons in that condition, whether delicate or healthy, will invariably be attended with benefit.
It has been used by various women in this vicinity for Barrenness, and in every instance with success.
MIEES & Co., Druggists, Portage City, Wis.

Having used the Graefenberg Uterine Catholicon in my practice for the last five years, I take pleasure in recording my testimony of its value, for I do not know of a single instance where it has not given the most complete satisfaction; and many cases of Uterine complaints have come under my notice, which, after having exhausted the skill of eminent physicians, have been permanently cured by this medicine. In fact, I never knew a remedy so universal in accomplishing the object for which it is designed and of so great value to the human family as this.
D. S. HARSHA, M. D., Owatonna, Minn.

I hereby certify that I have used the Graefenberg Company's Uterine Catholicon in my family, and consider it the best remedy for diseases peculiar to females that I have ever seen.
My wife was afflicted with Prolapsus Uteri (falling of the Womb), and by the use of the Catholicon is completely cured.
I would earnestly recommend it to any lady who may be subject to those distressing complaints.
REV. A. G. COCLEY, of the M. E. Church, Onalaska, Wis.

I most cheerfully indorse the above recommendation of the Graefenberg Company's Uterine Catholicon, having used it in my family with entire success.
I consider it the best remedy for female complaints in use.
H. J. PECK.

DINNEFORD'S PURE FLUID MAGNESIA has been during twenty-five years emphatically sanctioned by the Medical Profession, and universally accepted by the Public, as THE BEST REMEDY FOR ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH, HEARTBURN, HEAD-ACHE, GOUT, and INDIGESTION, and as a MILD APERIENT for delicate constitutions, more especially for Ladies and Children. Combined with the ACIDULATED LEMON SYRUP, it forms an agreeable Effervescing Draught, in which its aperient qualities are much increased. During Hot Seasons, and above all, in Hot Climates, the regular use of this simple and elegant remedy has been found highly beneficial. Manufactured (with the utmost attention to strength and purity,) by DINNEFORD & Co., 172, New Bond Street, London. And sold by all respectable Chemists throughout the World.

SAUCE.—LEA AND PERRINS' WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE. Pronounced by Connoisseurs to be the only good Sauce and applicable to every variety of Dish.
Extract of a Letter from a Medical Gentleman at Madras to his Brother at Worcester, May, 1851:—
"Tell Lea and Perrins that their Sauce is highly esteemed in India, and is, in my opinion, the most palatable as well as the most wholesome Sauce that is made.
CAUTION.
LEA AND PERRINS beg to caution the public against spurious imitations of their celebrated WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.
L. & P. have discovered that several of the Foreign Markets have been supplied with spurious imitations, the labels closely resembling those of the genuine Sauce, and in one or more instances the names of L. & P. forged.
L & P. will proceed against any one who may manufacture or vend such immitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world to advise them of any infringement of their rights.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Diseases of the Skin.—No case of disease of the skin, be its nature what it may, has failed to be benefitted when these potent remedies have been properly applied. In scrofulous and scorbutic affections they are especially serviceable. Scurvy and eruptions which had resisted all other modes of treatment and gradually become worse from year to year have been completely cured by Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills, which root out the disease from the blood itself, and leave the constitution free from every morbid taint. In the nursery Holloway's Ointment should be ever at hand, it will give ease in sprains, contusions, burns, scalds and infantile eruptions, and may always be safely applied by any ordinary attendant.
